Modern Women Playwrights of Europe brings together seventeen major plays by European women of the twentieth century. Some of these works are internationally known while others appear here in translation for the first time. Featuring selections by playwrights from several European countries from Spain and Greece to Iceland and Scandinavia, this volume presents plays that have been largely overlooked by most existing anthologies of Continental drama. It includes some interesting plays and excellent biographical information not readily available elsewhere. Frances Hall, Berkshire Community College. About the Author: Alan Barr is at Indiana University.
